Boeing Chooses CaseCentral for Company-Wide eDiscovery

September 21, 2009: 09:15 AM ET

CaseCentral, the leader in secure, on-demand eDiscovery software for corporate counsel and law firms looking to simplify and take control of eDiscovery, announced that The Boeing Company (NYSE: BA) has selected CaseCentral's on-demand eDiscovery review software. Boeing joins a growing list of corporate and law firm clients who depend on CaseCentral's software and services to support their eDiscovery needs, including more than 32 Fortune 100 companies and more than 83 of the American Lawyer 100 companies.

Boeing selected CaseCentral to provide a comprehensive set of repeatable, defensible and measurable eDiscovery capabilities as the corporate standard for new legal cases. CaseCentral will be used for early case assessment, processing, analysis, review, production and post-production re-use capabilities for both single and multiple matters.

"We are extremely proud and excited to be chosen by Boeing, the world's premier aerospace and defense corporation, and one of the world's best known brands and respected companies in the world," said Tom Thimot, CEO, CaseCentral. "Boeing's comprehensive and intensely competitive evaluation process set a high, but fair and open standard for all participating vendors. In the end, we believe CaseCentral's on-demand, integrated eDiscovery platform, augmented with process analytics, set us apart from all competitors."

The CaseCentral integrated eDiscovery platform, Release 4 (R4), is the first eDiscovery review software to integrate early case assessment, analysis, review and production on a single software platform, eliminating the need to transport data to additional systems for further review and eventual production, thereby decreasing risk, time and cost. Unlike other products, R4 allows clients to see the progress made by their outsourced review teams via an eDiscovery dashboard with process analytics. The CaseCentral eDiscovery platform uniquely supports the virtual teams that are typical in eDiscovery review -- corporate legal, law firms doing review work outside the corporate firewall, as well as outside review houses or LPOs performing critical review from locations across the country and even from other countries. This collaborative environment provides critical transparency and risk management of the review process to both inside and outside counsel, speeds the time to resolution and lowers costs.
